SCHOOL REPORT.

To the Selectmen and Citizens:

Herewith I submit my report as Superintending School Committee. For a number of years the schools of the town have been set off into two sections, demanding the attention of a corresponding number of persons as committee. It seemed wise and expedient to the Selectmen to unite the schools under one jurisdiction. Accordingly during the past year they all have fallen under my care. District No. 13, however, has withdrawn itself from the pale of our authority, having formed a Union High School District, with the adjoining district in Bath.

In view of the change in our school laws, taking effect the first day of March, I shall not make the suggestions in regard to the supervision of schools which would have been eminently pertinent under the old order of things.

SCHOOL-HOUSES.

The condition of the school-houses throughout the town is not of such a nature as to receive the approval or commendation of any person interested in the cause of education. No teacher can be justly expected to do justice to himself or his pupils without the necessary appliances. What tools are to the artisan, necessary supplies are to the teacher. In only one school have I found a globe. And for instruction, in the majority of the schools, the mapof our own State, and in some instances not even this, constitutes, aside from the text book, the sole means of instruction in that most important branch of study, Geography.

It is a fact, well attested by the experience of successful educators, that the mind is most thoroughly reached and retention there secured through and by the medium of sight. However much we may deplore the deficiency in regard to these matters, yet the lack of sufficient blackboard room is even more lamentable. And under this head I would include every school in town. For this condition of affairs no excuse can be given, when with so little expense the black-board surface of a school-room can be made amply sufficient. A smoothly skinned wall covered with liquid slating makes a most superior and very durable black-board. Rather than continue as we have in the past, it were better that a term of school should be shortened and the funds thus obtained used to secure this necessity in the way of good practical teaching. I feel assured that the end would justify the means and that immediately we should reap the fruit of our increased advantages.

Would that I might leave this subject here, satisfied that I had done my duty! But this cannot be when our schoolhouses, as a rule, present so untidy and uncomely an appearance. There is no more truthful exponent of the character of a community, no surer mark of its thrift and prosperity, than the condition of its school-house. As this is, so in a measure will the homes be. Would we be satisfied in the application of this criterion in our case? Money expended in making a school-room home-like and attractive is by no manner of means lost. Under such conditions the scholars are most generally industrious and pains-taking workers, and the teacher energetic and cheerful. Beside, this all tends to the cultivation of those habits of cleanliness and neatness which should be excited in the minds of the young. What can be imagined more dark, dismal, and forbidding than the external appearance of some of our school-houses. And if there be any excuse that can reasonably be offered for this, what shall we say when we enter and view the interior. The walls dirty and dingy from smoke and dust are brought out in more forcible contrast by a clean, new patch, and in some of our school-houses these patches are so frequent in their application that one could almost imagine it an attempt at mosaic. If necessary a coat of white-wash, applied once a year, would make no serious inroad into our school fund and would afford our children healthful and agreeable surroundings. A careful oversight exercised alike by committee and teacher would preserve our school property from the constant mutilation so generally inflicted by scholars. Let us banish the idea that our children should have no greater advantages in the way of securing an education than we or our fathers before us as children enjoyed. On the same ground the reaper and the mowing machine, nay, our very homes and habits of life, rise up and condemn us. As to the sanitary condition of school-houses the State Board of Health is making a strict examination.

TEACHERS.

With but few exceptions I have been well pleased with the work of the teachers in their respective schools. From all I can learn they have given general satisfaction. As I have not yet received the registers from quite a number of the teachers, and because the wisdom of the habit is very questionable, I shall break away from the old custom of making special mention of each school. Among our teachers for the past year have been a few who, for the first time, have tried their ability as instructors. Without an exception their work has been of a most gratifying character. They have been faithful, earnest and conscientious workers, and have proved valuable additions to our corps of teachers. The older teachers have maintained their former good reputation. Their work speaks for itself and commands our approval. I may be allowed to remark in this connection that we have some very able teachers, and also some who would justly be included under the heads of poor, and incompetent. As from the former class I forbear to select individual cases where praise could fairly be bestowed, so I will leave the latter without the censure which, with equal justice, could be written. Could persons generally realize the grave responsibility teachers incur as secondary agents, at least, in moulding the morals and in establishing correct and healthful channels of thought, they would not as a mere expedient, and without any special adaptation to the ends sought, embrace a profession where their success, if they meet with any, will be only of a mediocre character.

Although I find many things calling for words of commendation, I am constrained to say of nearly all the teachers, that in regard to proper government they are extremely deficient. I do not mean by this word government that a teacher should be a perfect Polyphemus to his scholars, receiving indeed their obedience and at the same time their bitterest animosity, but the school should be governed by its proper head, the teacher, and not by its subordinates, whether parents or scholars. And this superiority should be effected by a gentleness that is firm, by a kindness that is exacting and calculated to produce reciprocity in these relations. A snarling, prevish teacher will always be surrounded by unmannerly, discontented pupils, I know there are exceptions, but they are the exceptions that prove the rule. Where our school-rooms are study and recitation rooms combined, the more perfect the order which reigns, the more rapid and thorough the progress that will be made. The indiscriminate whispering practiced in most of our schools ought not, under any circumstances, to be tolerated. In the first place it is wholly unnecessary, and again it is sure to divert and distract the attention of other scholars from their studies and produces a perfect Babel of confusion in the school-room. Strict impartiality, no deference to older scholars (whoever makes a rule and enforces it with the younger scholars, being blind to its transgression by the older ones, receives the contempt of young and old alike), kindly, considerate treatment of all these, are rules which cannot be ignored. And in addition to this let not eacher imagine that his or her success in a school is guaged by the amount of work accomplished, but rather by its thoroughness. Where the work has to be traversed and retraversed again and again for the proper understanding of the subject, all previous work may be considered as well-nigh futile. I will close this portion of my report with the remark that our home institution, the Haverhill Academy, has furnished us with a majority of our teachers, and among them are numbered some of our most efficient instructors.

SCHOLARS AND PARENTS.

There has been nothing of any serious nature to disturb the quiet of the schools and call for interference on my part during the year. There is not care enough and pride enough on the part of parents and scholars in regard to punctuality. With the parents lies the remedy, as from them the fault has sprung. Aside from its pernicious effects upon the school, it is the formation of a habit which will prove a perfect barnacle in the way of future usefulness. No measures can be too stringent which look to the correction of this evil. The interference of parents in the discipline and government of schools will impair their efficiency, create dissatisfaction and set in motion the tongues of local gossips. The bad effects which arise from such a course are not overcome in a single term. Oftentimes by these means, the grossest injustice and injury results to a teacher. There will always be found a remedy for any real or fancied wrong done to our children, but under no circumstances should a scholar be made conscious that we espouse their cause as against the teacher. I write in this strain by reason of a little difficulty which occurred in one of our Southern districts.

Parents do not evince the interest which they ought to feel in the well-being of our schools. Little do we appreciate the influence on both scholar and teacher, of an occasional visit. We are thus made aware of some of the trials and annoyances of the teacher, learn their method, and can speak from actual observation, of the work that is being accomplished. On no other grounds have we a moral right to offer any criticism.

In conclusion, if without presuming too much, I may be allowed to suggest to the Committe, who under the new law will take our schools in hand, I would most respectfully recommend that at a given time and place, due notice of which having been given, they meet all those persons who desire positions as teachers in the schools. Let the morning be occupied in examinations. In the afternoon designate certain ones to ack as teachers, with the balance of the applicants as scholars, and as far as possible call upon them in turn to hear a recitation, to be selected by the Committee. From such a course I believe that the best possible results would ensue, and teachers could be selected of a capacity fitted to the varied requirements of each school.

We ought all of us to take a deeper interest in educational matters, for on this as a foundation is reared the fabric of our material wealth, and our national greatness. In it is contained the germ of every beneficent and moral activity.

DISTRICTS NO. 1 AND 17 AND HAVERHILL ACADEMY.

The Academy opened August 26th, 1885, with 70 scholars, but gradually increased so that the Fall term closed with 87. The Winter term began with 84 scholars and closed with 90. The average attendance for all the departments during the past terms has been 80.

The Primary Department is under the direction of Miss Mary E. Burbeck. The order has gradually improved, the scholars are interested and industrious. The condition of this department and the progress of the pupils has been highly satisfactory and creditable alike to teacher and scholars.

Miss Jennie Bean hascharge of the Intermediate Department. The scholars are keen and lively, but interested and well behaved. Miss Bean like all successful teachers spares neither time, patience nor labor to have a prosperous school. In her conduct of recitations there is much to be commended. In their examinations, all the scholars showed great thoroughness. The recitations in history and geography were especially interesting.

The Academic Department, under D. O. Bean, commenced in the Fall with 31 scholars but others came in so that the term closed with 41. The attendance was good, and the progress was especially commendable. The Winter term gave an encouraging increase. The interest in the school is constantly growing. Quite a large number of scholars from the adjoining towns of Piermont, Newbury, Lisbon, Bath and Benton as well as from other sections of our own town, are in regular attendance, so that the students from away average from 20 to 25. During the past year, classes have received instruction in Latin, Greek, German and French, Algebra, Geometry and English Literature, as well as the higher branches of a common school education. The indications now point to a large and prosperous term this Spring.

> HENRY MERRILL, Chairman,) Board of Tyler Westgate, Secretary, \ Education.

UNION HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT.

The Union High School District of Woodsville was organized March 7th, 1885, under the provisions of Sections 17 to 22 of Chapter 87 of the General Laws, and elected a Board of Education of six members, viz.: Ezra B. Mann, Albert H. Leighton, Herbert A. Remick, Samuel B. Page, James A. Sawyer and Seth P. Stickney. On May 9th following, by concurrent vote of the Districts, District No. 10 in Bath was united with the High School District. The funds available for the uses of the District, including $350 specially voted, amounted to about $1,000. Schools have been supported in three departments 31 weeks each. A full supply of fuel for the coming year has been purchased, about twenty new folding desks and seats placed in the school-rooms, a third room fitted up on the second floor for the highest department, and other improvements made, the bills for all of which have been rendered and paid, and there is no District debt. The property of the District is worth at least seven thousand dollars, and upon the building policies have been placed for $4,000 insurance which have yet about two years to run.

The President of the Board is Rev. H. A. Remick; Secretary, Albert II. Leighton: Treasurer and Purchasing Agent, Ezra B. Mann; Examining and Visiting Committee, H. A. Remick, Samuel B. Page; Agent and Janitor, James A. Sawyer; Clerk, George Emery. We believe the system adopted to have been fruitful of good results in every direction apparent in our improved business methods, social advancement, and as giving us a full and satisfactory return for our investments and expenditures; and that we can now offer to all who contemplate locating in any New England village, its first and most important element, a first-class system of public schools conducted with wise liberality and under the best approved methods.

The Primary school has been taught during the year by Abbie L. Cheney, with 39 different pupils whose average daily attendance has been 95 per cent. This school has two sessions of two hours each daily. The results of the year are very satisfactory, Miss Cheney being especially happy in her ways with little folk and easily winning their affection.

The Intermediate school was under the instruction of Marion McLeod during the summer term, and the Board are unanimous in the expression of the highest commendation. This grade of school always proves the most difficult to deal with. As a rule the boys do not yet esteem themselves young gentlemen, nor do the young Misses wear the manners of young ladyhood. Miss McLeod's excellent service is best attested by her unanimous re-election, and by the regret manifested throughout the District when her declination was made known. Helen F. Baker took charge of this department through the fall and winter terms. This lady possesses excellent attainments, and her pupils made good progress during both terms. The number of different pupils in this department during the year has been 39, with an average daily attendance of 94 per cent.

The High school was placed in charge of Bernard V. Child at the opening of the school year, and remained in his charge during the three terms. It is a pleasure to report that not a complaint of any character whatever has reached the Board, whether upon the score of discipline, methods of instruction, results attained, or the personal qualities of Mr. Child as a gentleman. This department passed good examinations, embraced in its number 42 different pupils, of whom 10 were tuition paying scholars, and its average attendance was 91 per cent.

In the opinion of the Board, the present school-rooms will answer all requirements for the first and second terms of the coming year. They recommend that means be placed at their disposal for the fitting up of a fourth room when required, and that the sum of $300 be raised for all purposes. Under the school laws of 1885, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, this District preserves its present organization, and its Annual Meeting will be held March 12th, at 7 o'clock P. M., at the School House Hall.

SAMUEL B. PAGE, For the Board.
